WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Friday fired into a more than 400-mile-high orbit the world's first known weather observing satellite. Scientists indicated it radioed back a television picture of a storm in the American Midwest.

The camera-equipped satellite, named Tiros I, may be the forerunner of a network of robot space stations designed to flash almost instantaneous reports of weather conditions around the globe.

The Soviet Union is known to be interested in using satellites for long-range weather forecasting, but there has been no sign they have attempted to put anything like the Tiros into orbit.

The 270-pound Tiros, appearing much like an oversized hatbox, rode into the skies from Cape Canaveral, Fla., at 6:40 a.m. All three stages of its Thor-Able rocket carrier ignited in succession. The satellite then broke away and went into a circular orbit close to advance calculations.

Within a few hours, scientists at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration unhesitatingly said the satellite had gone into orbit and, on command from ground stations, had started transmitting signals indicating there is "something good there."

Scientists Reluctant

But the scientists were reluctant to say immediately that Tiros' two cameras had taken actual still pictures of the earth's cloud cover on its 99.15-minute circuits of the planet.

Some space specialists would say only that they were getting a series of dots that required interpretation.

However, Dr. Harry Wexler, chief scientist for the Weather Bureau, told a newsmen at midday he felt signals received will show a picture of the Midwest storm which is on the weather map.

Dr. Abe Silverstein, chief of NASA's space flight projects, said: "We think we are getting signals that indicate pictures of cloud cover."

Tiros — which takes its name from initials for Television and Infra-Red Observation Satellite — is traveling in an almost perfect circle, the space agency said. Its orbit was calculated to take it as far as 468.28 miles from earth and within 433.1 miles at its closest point.

Silverstein said the weather eye satellite should stay in orbit for decades. But its sun-powered radio equipment is expected to function only for about three months.

The top and sides of the 42x13 inch satellite are practically covered by 9,000 solar cells intended to trap the sun's rays and convert them into energy to run batteries of Tiros' three radio transmitters.

Cameras Point Out

When computations indicate conditions are right for pictures, radio commands are sent to the satellite from stations at either Ft. Monmouth, N.J. or Kaena Point, Hawaii.

Two cameras point out from Tiros' underside. One is set to cover an earth area 800 miles square, the other to photograph a 30-mile-square plot at the center of the larger area.

Each camera is geared to take 32 pictures at 30-second intervals. The images may be transmitted to earth directly, or stored on magnetic tape and sent later on command from the ground. The images are then fed onto a television screen and photographed.

Photograph signals are coming in on 235 megacycles while the tracking signals are on 108 and 108.03 megacycles.

In advance of the launching, the space agency stressed that Tiros I is only an experimental meteorological satellite.

Long Range Photos

However, Wexler said that if it collects good clear pictures of the cloud cover over large areas of the world it is conceivable some limited use may be made of them in actual forecasting.

Space agency officials also speculated that Tiros could get long range pictures of the southern Soviet Union and all of Communist China. But such pictures would only show a land mass outlined against surrounding sea, they said and would not be fine enough to detect such points as missile bases.

A more advanced Tiros II is due to be launched late this summer. It will carry infrared radiation detectors to map relative temperatures on the earth's surface.

Flood Waters Roll Into New Areas, Ups Homeless

By The Associated Press

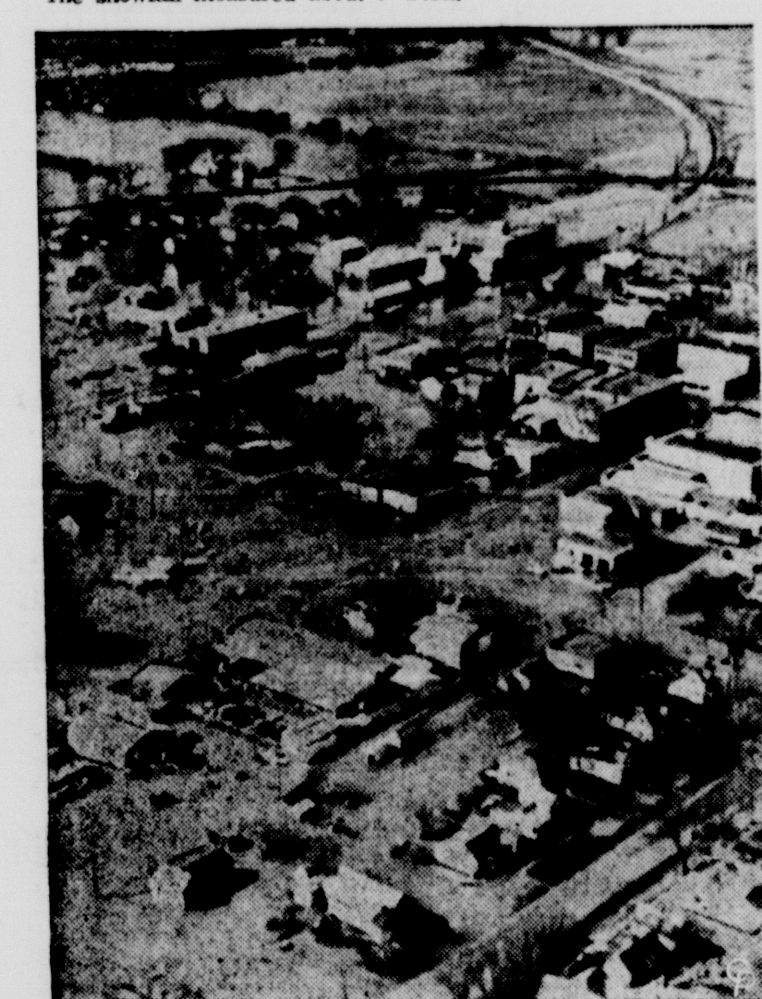

ICY FLOOD waters rolled across new territory Friday, spilling over dikes and putting hundreds to flight.

The number of homeless soared to 15,000.

A storm pushed into the Midwest flood zone and hindered protection and rescue operations.

Windblown snow swirled in parts of Nebraska, the Dakotas and Minnesota. Rain spread eastward over much of the central section.

The snowfall measured about 6

FLOODS HIT THE MIDWEST — This aerial photo shows the inundated business district of Frankfort, Kan., as the floodwaters began receding. The thawing of a record snowfall that came down three weeks ago caused the Black Vermillion River to overflow. Flood crests that threatened to equal 20-year records besieged Kansas and Nebraska communities in an eight-state rampage across the prairie belt. Entire communities were isolated, hundreds of persons were driven from their homes, and there was extensive property damage.

State Streams, Rivers Run Over

By The Associated Press

RIVERS and streams in Pennsylvania ran full Friday, spilling over in some places, but the state escaped major flooding.

Barring heavy rain—and none was forecast—river forecasters said Pennsylvania would get through the rapid spring thaw without widespread damage.

In Western Pennsylvania the swollen Allegheny, Monongahela and Ohio rivers receded slowly after scattered flooding.

Streams in central and eastern sections generally were rising, but no serious high water was expected.

The Ohio River, formed at Pittsburgh by merger of the Allegheny and Monongahela, crested early Friday at 27.7 feet. Flood stage is 25 feet, although significant flooding does not occur below 30 feet.

Communities along the three rivers experienced mostly basement flooding as water crept into low-lying areas. Some streets and roads were closed.

French Creek at Meadville, the hardest hit area, continued to drop after cresting at 50.6 feet, 3.3 feet over flood stage.

Leave Homes

High water forced about 200 persons to leave their homes. Schools closed for the day. Two industrial plants shut down.

Joseph Fahey, executive director of the Meadville Redevelopment Authority, gave a preliminary damage estimate of 1½ million dollars.

Elsewhere, high water was reported on the North Branch of the Susquehanna River with roads blocked between Wilkes-Barre and Sunbury.

Toward on the Susquehanna North Branch, with a 16-foot flood stage, reported a crest of 22.9 feet.

inches in Detroit Lakes, Minn., and ranged up to 10 inches in South Dakota.

Surging waters forced National Guardsmen to retreat in Iowa and routed hundreds of persons from their houses.

Eight States

The Red Cross estimated that 14,000 were homeless in eight states—South Dakota, Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan. At least 3,000 others had to move in West Virginia, Pennsylvania and New York.

The death toll rose to 10—3 in Nebraska, 3 in Missouri, 2 in Illinois, 1 in New York and 1 in South Dakota.

Factories and stores were closed and highways and rail lines were blocked.

The Missouri River went over dikes in southwestern Iowa and National Guardsmen and volunteers pulled back about two miles inland to protect the town of Pacific Junction.

Residents were ordered to evacuate after a dike broke four miles north of Bartlett, Iowa.

The Des Moines River put more than 450 persons out of their homes in northern and eastern sections of Des Moines and a National Guard unit was called out to repair a broken levee.

The Iowa River topped levees north of Marshalltown, Iowa, invaded a residential area and routed more than 250 persons from their homes.

Rain hampered the fight against the flood in Nebraska.

A dike gave way in Hooper, Neb., and waters from the Elkhorn River washed across nine blocks of the town and forced many of the 850 residents to move.

Foured Over Levee

The storied Spoon River poured over a levee at Duncantown, west of Havana, Ill., and a sandbag barrier was reared along U.S. 24.

The Pecatonica River covered the main streets of McDonnell and Winslow in northwestern Illinois.

The rising Mississippi prompted farmers to move livestock and equipment to high ground from the Dogtooth Bend area north of Cairo, Ill.

Workers labored to bolster levees along the North Grand, Missouri and Mississippi rivers in Missouri. The North Grand was out of its bed south of Pattonsburg.

The Burlington Railroad halted service through Canton, Mo., on the Mississippi because of high water.

A number of families left their homes in lowlands along the Shawnee and Grand rivers in the Michigan.

Evacuate 35

Deputy sheriffs used boats and a hay wagon to evacuate 35 persons in Nedrow, south of Syracuse, N.Y.

But floods eased up in the East.

All the streams in western Pennsylvania receded and the Ohio crest passed Pittsburgh.

In West Virginia, 400 were homeless in the New Cumberland area and 600 in East Raintelle, where waters of the Meadow River swirled up to the doors of stores in the downtown district.

Crests predicted for the upstream section of the Ohio River, from Wheeling, W.Va., to Greenup, Ky., were revised downward.

The Weather Bureau said most points would experience only low-land flooding.

Minor flooding occurred or was anticipated at Danville, Sunbury, Wilkes-Barre and Harrisburg.

Water seeped through a dirt and brick dike about a half mile outside Danville. There was some fear the mile-long dike might cave in from the force of the water. Even so, not much damage was expected.

Danville Police Chief Joseph Schultz said the river water, if it cracks the dike, would flow through several creeks and follow the Lackawanna Railroad tracks into town. Residents of 20 to 30 homes in the Second Ward would have to evacuate. The nearest property to the dike is the Danville State Hospital but it is built on high ground and in no danger.

Will Be Sandbagged

An official of the Forest and Waters Department, after an inspection of the Danville dike, said that the leaking area would be sandbagged on the dry land side in an effort to seal it.

About 15 families evacuated to their homes above Nanticoke, to the south of Wilkes-Barre. They live on the river banks and left for precautionary measures only. There was no reported danger in the area.

UN Asks Africa To Ditch Racial Laws Blames White Supremacy For Unrest

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The U.N. Security Council Friday called upon South Africa's nationalist government to scrap its strict racial policies in order to live in peace with its millions of Negroes.

By a vote of 9-0 with 2 abstentions the 11-nation council adopted a resolution blaming mass shootings of Negroes and other racial unrest on South Africa's white supremacy laws.

Britain and France abstained. There had been reports both might kill the resolution with a veto.

This would have aroused bitter reaction on the part of many U.N. members, particularly among the Asian-African nations, who regarded the resolution as extremely mild.

Domestic Issue

The British and French delegates explained after the vote that they had reservations on the legal competence of the council to deal with what South Africa regarded as a domestic issue.

The United States and the Soviet Union both endorsed the resolution, presented by Ecuador and worked out in conference with Asian-African nations.

South Africa's delegate Bernardus G. Fourie made known before the vote his government considered the entire three-day council debate illegal. It appeared his government would therefore ignore the resolution.

The resolution deplored the recent violence in South Africa and the actions by its government which it said "have given rise to the present situation."

It asked Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld to consult with the South African government to see what could be done to carry out provisions of the U.N. charter dealing with racial discrimination. He was asked to report back to the council "whenever necessary and appropriate."

Requests Meet

Diplomatic sources said Hammarskjöld had requested Fourie to meet with him at 11:30 a.m. Saturday.

Ambassador Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana, one of the leaders in bringing the charges against South Africa, expressed satisfaction but added he would have liked a stronger resolution.

Another African leader, Caba Sory of Guinea, said that while the resolution contained positive elements, he would have preferred one calling for economic or diplomatic penalties against South Africa.

Successful Launching Of Sphere

WASHINGTON (AP) — The space agency Friday night launched a 100-foot inflatable sphere visible for hundreds of miles.

The launching, at 6:55 p.m. Eastern Standard Time from Wallops Island, Va., was successful, as were three earlier launchings in a series aimed at developing a communications relay system.

The launching rocket left a long vapor trail as it climbed upward from the launching site about 130 miles east of here.

Thirty seconds after the vapor trail ended, the sphere opened. It had the appearance of a large yellow star more than 200 miles above the earth.

The light remained visible for about 10 minutes before slowly descending. The 100-foot-diameter sphere, made of plastic coated with aluminum, was designed to fall into the Atlantic about 500 miles off the coast.

The test sphere is a forerunner of a 100-foot, balloon-type satellite which the National Aeronautics and Space Administration plans to place in orbit around the earth later this year.

Trujillo Quits As Party Head

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Generalissimo Rafael Leonidas Trujillo resigned yesterday, as head of the Dominican party. He said his purpose was to set the stage for free elections with two or more parties in the running.

The Dominican party has long been the only effective political party in this country.

Trujillo, 68, has ruled the Dominican Republic for 30 years. In a letter to the governing board of the Dominican party, he said he also was quitting as a member of the organization. He said he wanted to encourage the formation of other parties. Such moves, he added, are unlikely if he continued in the party.

NATIVES BURN PASSES IN SOUTH AFRICA — Cheering Africans burn their passbooks in Johannesburg, Union of South Africa, as a sign of victory over the identification system. New clashes with police occurred on a day of mourning that kept natives home in a general strike over the death of 72 Africans in demonstrations against passes. At least 15 persons are believed dead as rioters attacked Africans who defied the work ban. The Government is reportedly ready to use troops.

Flemming Hails Youth Parley

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Welfare Arthur S. Flemming said Friday the federal government "must assume a larger share of the responsibility" for charting this country's course in education.

He said the White House Conference on Children and Youth was "certainly headed in the right direction" when it suggested tripling the nation's expenditures for education.

Flemming didn't commit himself specifically to that amount, however. He said he wanted to study the proposal further.

But he told the closing session of the 1960 conference: "I firmly believe that the time has come for us to obtain agreement on what should be our investment in education as a nation over a period of the next five or ten years."

Must Assume Big Role

"There is no doubt in my mind," the secretary added, "that the federal government must assume a larger share of the total responsibility than it is now assuming."

Saying he had been much impressed by the work done by the conference delegates, Flemming declared he was encouraged by their strong stand against racial discrimination in all walks of life.

Among the more than 1,600 recommendations of the conference, the field of human rights got the most attention. Education was a top runner, too.

Flemming said significant progress had been made in eliminating discriminatory practices in the past 10 years and he predicted "we are going to move even more rapidly between now and 1970."

On juvenile delinquency, he agreed the conference was right that more should be invested in finding cause and cure.

Senate Votes Rights Bill To Courts

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate voted 69-22 Friday to direct the courts to specify the times and places for holding federal registration hearings proposed under the civil rights bill.

The action killed an amendment by Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) requiring that local registrars be notified of the hearings two days in advance so that they could sit in and make a transcript of the proceedings.

Sen. John A. Carroll (D-Colo.) offered the compromise proposal, which was adopted over Southern opposition.

Civil rights proponents protested that Kefauver's amendment would have undermined the key voting referee plan by opening the way to intimidation of Negroes seeking to register and vote.

Adoption of Carroll's proposal, which was called acceptable to the Eisenhower administration, cleared the last major obstacle to final Senate action on the House-passed civil rights bill.

Carroll's substitute amendment retained a House provision for uncontested hearings, stipulating only that they be held "at such times and places as the court shall direct."

After disposing of the Carroll amendment, the Senate killed a proposal to give legal status to a 15-member presidential commission to work against racial discrimination in federal contract hiring.

Hopefuls Play It Safe

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Democratic presidential hopefuls trumpeted new demands on safe old issues in Wisconsin's primary campaign Friday. Both Sens. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota studiously avoided the religious controversy raised Thursday.

Instead, both retraced old campaign trails in the populous southern part of the state, plumping for medical insurance for the aged and other social advances as they moved into the final days of a strenuous hard-hitting campaign. It all ends Tuesday in the first contested presidential primary of 1960.

Humphrey picked industrial Racine to put in another double-barreled pitch for primary votes and medical insurance for the aged under the Social Security system. Kennedy duplicated the performance in a talk prepared for delivery at a reception at Beloit.

Limited Testing

GENEVA (AP) — The United States proposed yesterday that the first three members of the atomic club resume joint nuclear testing on a limited scale to speed solution of the elusive problem of how to detect underground shots.

The suggestion was made in the nuclear test suspension conference only a few hours after France fired off her second atomic device. It was advanced with British backing as part of the Camp David arrangement worked out earlier this week by President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

Hatchet-Toting Negroes Gunned Down In Durban

DURBAN, South Africa (AP)—Carrying clubs, hatchets, and sharpened pieces of wire, several hundred Negroes converged on the city jail Friday demanding release of their leaders. They argued against an order to disperse and police opened fire. Three marchers were killed and three wounded.

Two others were hospitalized with head wounds. They had not been shot.

Leading opponents of the government's apartheid—racial segregation—policies had been taken to jail in this week's wave of arrests.

Three columns marched out of the native settlement of Cato Manor on the city's outskirts. Armed cars, troop carriers, police riot cars, and soldiers armed with fixed bayonets rushed in and headed off two groups.

A third column of men, women and children outflanked the police and headed down the main thoroughfare of this Indian Ocean port, South Africa's third city.

Forced Joiners

Marchers forced members of their own race to join them in the display of defiance to white supremacy laws. Some bystanders were lifted bodily into the line of march and compelled to go on to the jail, where the shooting occurred. After that they fled back to their homes.

Cato Manor has a record of violence including three riots within the past year. In January, a mob killed nine policemen on a raiding party. Just 24 hours ago, police blocked a similar march headed for the Durban jail.

The police acted under the government's new emergency powers approaching martial law. Under the state of emergency declared Wednesday, police apparently have felt less constraint in using their weapons. Even in the face of 30,000 Cape Town demonstrators earlier this week, they held their fire.

Friday about 1,400 marchers headed into Heramus, a coastal resort 50 miles east of Cape Town. The crowd, including some women, was warned to disperse, but refused. Police charged, swinging clubs and rifle butts.

Emergency Measures

Police on the Cape peninsula took emergency measures to break a crippling work stoppage. Police said citizen arrests could be made of anyone found handing out leaflets urging people to stay away from work, or intimidating workers.

The peninsula has been bearing the brunt of widespread disorder as Negroes attempt to exert an economic boycott and enforce their demands for abolition of the pass system for nonwhites, equal work for equal pay with minimum wages and hours—and possibly political rights. Low-cost African labor is the main support of South Africa's economy.

Eisenhower Now Reduced To Dots

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower was enumerated Friday and is now being reduced to a series of dots on a piece of paper.

If this sounds gruesome, it doesn't hurt a bit. It's all part of the once-a-decade national census. Everyone winds up as a series of dots which are fed through an electronic brain.

By next December the brain will tell how many people there are in the United States. Later on it will provide detailed statistics on how they live and work.

A full complement of 170,000 census takers, or enumerators, began their door-to-door visits early Friday morning. The only major hitch came in flooded sections of the Midwest and East. The Census Bureau said the count in many of these areas will be delayed.

Two high-ranking enumerators—Census Director Robert H. Burgess and District Supervisor Louis Alexis—showed up at the White House—soon after breakfast and collected the required information about the nation's first family.

Eisenhower met them in his office and observed that this was the first time he ever had met a census taker. He said the Army must have counted him during his military days.

Information supplied for the census is kept secret by law, but the White House disclosed the President's report, prepared by an aide.

The White House has 132 rooms, bathtub and flush toilet "for the use of this household only," and is equipped with hot and cold running water.

The President pays no rent and reported that, to the best of his knowledge, there are no vacant apartments or vacant rooms for rent in the White House.

Alexis and Burgess stayed with the President about five minutes. The Census Bureau estimates this is about the length of time required at each of the 55 million households being visited by the enumeration army during April.

Ike Marvels At Weather Eye Pictures

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States bolted past a new spacemarker Friday by firing the first known weather eye satellite into orbit. It photographed the earth and its cloud cover from 50 miles up and televised back the images.

A triumphant space agency rushed the pictures to President Eisenhower, who exclaimed: "I think it's a marvelous development."

Dr. T. Keith Glennan, chief of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, brought Eisenhower a four-picture sequence showing an 800-mile-square area comprising the Gulf of St. Lawrence. The curvature of the earth was clearly discernible.

Vote With Majority

WASHINGTON (AP)—Pennsylvania's two senators—Republican Hugh Scott and Democrat Joseph Clark—voted with the majority Friday as the Senate passed 69-22 an amendment to the civil rights bill to require that hearings by proposed voting referees be held at times and places fixed by the courts.

U.S. Offers Soviet Look At Launchers

GENEVA (AP)—The United States offered Friday to throw its satellite launching pads open to Soviet inspection, provided the Soviet Union returns the favor. The first Soviet reaction was negative.

U. S. Ambassador Frederick M. Eaton made the proposal in an effort to pull the 10-nation disarmament conference out of its three-week-old stalemate.

Eaton called for a permanent ban on nuclear-armed space vehicles and for a simple on-site inspection system to prevent violations. He also suggested an exchange of radar tracking information to supplement control of launching sites.

Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin dismissed the proposal as meaningless and told the conference the Kremlin wants all-or-nothing acceptance of the Soviet four-year plan for total world disarmament.

Save Humanity

Eaton said emergency measures are required to avert humanity from the threat of space war before it is too late. He warned that development of satellites with nuclear payloads may soon pass the point of no return. Beyond this point, he said, a controlled ban on such weapons may prove virtually impossible because of the number of nations acquiring the necessary techniques.

At present only the United States and the Soviet Union have the means and know-how to launch military vehicles into space. Launching sites are relatively few and controls could be maintained by a few inspectors, Eaton said.

Eaton emphasized the program would in no way disturb national space programs for scientific and other peaceful purposes.

Zorin called Eaton's proposal disappointing because it showed the United States opposed a Soviet formula for "general and complete disarmament."

Anterless Deer Bid Rejected

HARRISBURG (AP)—A resolution opposing an antlerless deer season this year was rejected Friday at the spring convention of the Pennsylvania Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs.

The proposal was defeated shortly after the delegates voted down a proposal against permitting a doe season this year in the southern part of the state.

The resolutions were among 42 presented during the opening session of the two-day meeting. Proposals approved are subject to a final vote at Saturday's session but defeated resolutions can be brought up again only by unanimous consent.

Sunday School Lesson

Jesus Christ Heals Sick

By Newman Campbell
WE ARE introduced to this beautiful and helpful lesson by an account of Christ's preachings and healings in Galilee.

"And Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the Kingdom, and healing all manner of sickness and all manner of disease among the people. And His fame went throughout all Syria; and they brought unto Him all sick people that were taken with divers diseases and torments, and those which were possessed with devils, and those which were lunatic, and those that had the palsy; and He healed them." — St. Matthew 4:23-24.

Not only those who had diseases of the body, but those whose minds were deranged, were healed by the Lord Jesus. "And there followed Him great multitudes of people from Galilee, and from Decapolis, and from Jerusalem, and from Judea, and from beyond Jordan." — Matthew 4:25.

"And seeing the multitudes, He went up into a mountain, and when He was set, His disciples came unto Him: And He opened His mouth, and taught them." — Matthew 5:1-2.

"There had been much teaching in synagogues before this, but never man taught as this Man. There had never been any preaching of the gospel of the Kingdom before this. Occasional miracles of healing are recorded in the Old Testament by Elijah and Elisha, but there had never been on earth one continuous ministry of healing as was now undertaken by the Great Physician, nor has there been any like it since."

He is quoted from Peloubet's Select Notes, edited by the Rev. Dr. Wilbur M. Smith, who also states, "We do not know exactly where the hill was on which Jesus delivered His Sermon on the Mount."

In this study of Jesus Christ's preaching we, of course, have not room to include this marvelous sermon which the Lord taught to the multitudes on the mountain top. The first 11 verses begin with the word "blessed":

"Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven; Blessed are they that mourn; for they shall be comforted; blessed are the meek, the righteous, the merciful, the pure in heart, the peace-makers, and those persecuted for the sake of righteousness." — Matthew 5:1-11.

As concerns relationships between people, Christ said that if a man has a quarrel with another, he should not place his gift to God on the altar before he is reconciled to his brother.

Christ also warned against divorce and the evils of unfaithfulness, of which we hear so much today. He forbade swearing by taking the Lord's name in vain. "Love your enemies . . . That ye may be the children of your Father in heaven." He said, —Matthew 5:33-48.

Do not be hypocritical, boasting of your charities. Give secretly to those in need, for God knows what you do and will reward you. And "When thou prayest, enter into thy closet and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to the Father which is in secret; and the Father, which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly." — Matthew 6:5-6.

There are 103 verses assigned to our lesson today, which cannot all be covered in the Sunday school lesson period of teaching. I may have omitted some that the teacher may consider more important, and he must choose what he considers so.

Remember that Christ said: "Think not that I am come to destroy the law or the prophets; I am come to fulfill." — Matthew 5:17.

Building A New Life

Quite a thrill — building a new home! Day by day you watch it take shape. And somehow, you have the feeling that this new house will bring new life for you and your family.

But building a new life isn't as simple as building a new home. One just can't move out of the drab past into a sparkling future.

The life to which conscientious men and women aspire is built on foundations that cannot be laid in a week or two. Character, courage, consecration — these are concrete evidences of faithful years in the worship and service of God.

Today, where there are new houses there are new churches — and where there are old houses there are old churches. And through the portals of all the churches pass the millions of earnest families who are serious and happy about building a new life.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Need For Awakening

Not long ago the police of a New York community took desperate measures to stir adults out of the "don't care" attitude so many of them seem to have.

At 1:30 a.m. they roused the parents of 20 youngsters out of bed and ushered them into police headquarters to see what their sons and daughters had been up to while the grown-ups slept.

Most of the parents, when awakened, didn't have the faintest idea where their children were, or what they had been doing that night.

The fact is, police said, the teenagers had congregated with the intention of staging a "rumble." Parents were shown tire irons, kitchen knives, golf clubs and even an 18-inch bolo knife, with which the youngsters had armed themselves before the police caught up with them.

The sad part of this report is the attitude of the parents. Some of them seemed disturbed for a time. One father slapped his son; several mothers cried. But others merely complained after losing sleep.

All in all, the police account said, many of the parents seemed more annoyed over the interruption of their night's rest than concerned about the plight of their sons and daughters.

Although the incident may be an exaggerated one in some respects, it does demonstrate the great need existing in America today for an awakening of our consciences, and acceptance of responsibility on the part of parents for the behavior pattern of their children.

The episode shows the direction in which we are drifting and offers a real challenge to right-thinking people, parents and non-parents alike, to do all in their power to reverse the trend which can engulf the vast majority of our young people if allowed to continue.

Russian Ice Breaker

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Stu Symington's Chances

The declaration by Sen. Stuart Symington that he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President is a surprise. Symington has been a candidate, I think, for many years and a very active one.

His future depends upon the influence and power of former President Harry Truman, which has been growing steadily in the Democratic Party.

It is now obvious, by mathematical as well as political calculations, that Sen. John Kennedy must be nominated on the first or second ballot or he will not be nominated at all for President.

What that means in political terms is that if Kennedy does not reach nomination by the second ballot, his pledged votes will dissipate.

This is always a peril to the candidate way out in front. From now to convention time, it is Kennedy's task to arrange to hold his delegations up to at least the fourth ballot. This politically is a formidable task.

Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri steps into the race as a middle-of-the-road compromise candidate. Sen. Hubert Humphrey must, at this moment, be regarded as having passed his peak. The Democratic Party is not apparently in a mood for ADA radicals.

Hubert Humphrey has chosen that position; he need not have done that. He is too intelligent a man to accept the sociological poppycock represented by the ADA. But he made his choice and he is stuck with it. Politics can be unmerciful.

Stuart Symington is a handsome, affable personality. He has been successful in business. He entered public life on the administrative side. He was Secretary of the Air Force in the Truman Administration.

In the Senate, he has been one of the outstanding experts on military affairs. He has a black mark on his record in his relations with Sen. Joe McCarthy, but that will not cost him any votes because the McCarthyites would not vote for him anyhow.

Symington's attitude toward Soviet Russia is sound and realistic. He is not likely to be tricked by a slight Russian smirk, to say nothing of a smile. He would not be influenced, even slightly, by Park Avenue intellectualism, the disease from which Adlai Stevenson suffers.

(For those who do not know, Park Ave. Intellectualism is the substitution of conversation for knowledge, of loose theories for experience. In fact, the Park Ave. Intellectual regards the expert as a bore and any reference to history or fact as a vulgarity.)

My earlier reference to Harry Truman means more than appears on the surface. What has happened to Herbert Hoover also happened to Harry Truman.

Many who believed that Harry Truman was called in the Presidency have come to respect him since he left that office. His judgment has been sounder, less compromising. He has not been surrounded by those who "made him."

He has not only applied his self-pronounced common sense to public problems but, even more, he has displayed considerable evidence of precise knowledge and sound judgment.

Whereas Adlai Stevenson, because he is the most recently defeated Democratic Presidential candidate, has the right to assert himself as the nominal leader of the Democratic Party, the tendency among an increasing number of Democrats is to prefer Harry Truman who possesses greater qualities of leadership.

At any rate, in the struggle between Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and Carmine De Sapio for control of the enormous New York delegation to the Democratic Convention, Harry Truman is becoming the principal factor in New York State politics.

Whenever he comes to New York, he is treated as though he were a visiting potentate and when he takes his morning walk, newspapermen and others join him until it looks like a miniature parade.

In the smoke-filled room where the Democratic candidate will finally be chosen, Harry Truman's voice will be determining. He is likely to favor Stuart Symington or Lyndon Johnson.

This will not be based on personal emotionalism but upon Harry Truman's judgment as to which of these two can most surely defeat Richard Nixon. His opposition to Nixon is not only personal; it is ideological. Truman hates the Republican Party.

He will never forgive references to the Democratic Party as the Party of Treason or to himself as soft on Communists. He is a formidable enemy and whoever ignores him does so at his peril.

Thus the Symington candidacy takes on great significance.

CUTIES

—By E. Simms Campbell

Export Threat? —Import interests, as might be expected, strongly oppose any fee, not to mention quotas. They point out that imports, although sharply higher in 1953, still amounted to less than four percent of domestic mill consumption. A higher tariff on cotton imports, they say, might drive foreign manufacturers to switch to synthetic fibers, thus reducing the export market for U.S. cotton. Other countries, they suggest, would almost certainly meet any restrictions on their exports to the U.S. with measures of their own against U.S. exports.

Whatever the Tariff Commission decides to recommend, however, the President will have the last word. And whatever his decision, it is not likely to please anyone. The only remedy that would satisfy the textile industry would be fixed quotas, which run counter to U.S. trade policy. Anything less is bound to lead to increased pressure on Congress to come to the industry's rescue if cotton imports continue to climb.

Off The Record

By Robert Clark, City Editor

A recent successful membership drive by the Pocono Mountains Auto Club deserves the plaudits to all affiliated with the organization. However, a big share of the lauds should go to Cynthia Watt, its secretary and key figure for many years who was forced to bow out recently because of medical reasons.

Mrs. Watt, wife of John, the Stroudsburg banker, has been one of the inspirations which has jettied the unit to prominence not only here in Monroe but throughout the state and nation.

Through her efficient hands and guidance, the auto server of vehicle owners has grown by leaps and bounds since she took over the office — governing reins nearly a decade ago.

From the board of governors right through to the man and woman behind the wheel of the car, Mrs. Watt got justly deserved-praise on her retirement a short time ago.

Cigars are being passed out by Charles Knickerbocker, controller at Shawnee Inn and Country Club.

Knickerbocker is shouting to the skies on the recent arrival of a boy. The baby made its appearance at Middletown, N.Y., hospital March 16, tipping the scales at an even six pounds.

Both mother and son are doing fine and have agreed to name the offspring Charles Knickerbocker III.

This weekend the entire Knickerbocker brood will be reunited at their home at Marshalls Creek.

The Daily Record and photographer Les Carlton were the keys in a "behind the scenes" article which appeared recently in PIN a Bureau of OOID-Age and Survivors Insurance publication of Social Security.

The duo's work dealt with a story on George Graff's qualifying for an increase in benefits a year ago.

PIN remarked, "the story is unique in many respects. The fact that it was tied in with the observance of St. Patrick's Day — who else wrote When Irish Eyes Were Smiling but Graff — gave an added boost to the human interest angle."

Like Stroudsburg George, The Record and Carlton keep rolling along to everyone's liking.

Q—The daughter of a neighbor of ours is a war orphan, with a physical handicap. Must she wait until her eighteenth birthday before she can begin training, under the War Orphans Education Act?

A—No. A law passed recently gave boys and girls with handicaps, who previously would have had to wait until their eighteenth birthday, the right to begin special types of War Orphans training when they reach age 14.

Q—I was in a Japanese prison camp during the fighting in Korea. I have a dental condition traceable to my service, but for which I do not receive compensation from VA. Is there a deadline in my case for applying for VA out-patient dental treatment?

A—No. You may apply at any time, and receive as many treatments as needed.

Q—If I should add the total disability income rider to my World War Two GI insurance policy, and become disabled, would the amount my beneficiaries would receive from the policy in case of my death be reduced in any way?

A—No. Disability payments made under the rider in no way decrease payments made to beneficiaries of your GI insurance policy.

Q—Is a veteran obliged to report disability compensation as income, in filing his federal income tax?

A—No. Disability compensation paid by the VA is not taxable, nor are other VA benefit payments. Interest on GI insurance dividends, however, is taxable as income.

The Allen-Scott Report

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — Communist-ruled Poland wants to borrow $300 million from the U.S. over a three-year period.

This big loan would be used to buy U. S. oil refinery and other equipment, particularly for a petrochemical industry Poland wants to establish, and for steel and other supplies.

U. S. technicians to supervise the construction of these new plants are also desired by Poland—the first to be sought by a Soviet bloc country.

These unannounced proposals were the real purpose of that conference between President Eisenhower and Deputy Premier Piotr Jaroszewicz. He came to the U.S. at the State Department's invitation to discuss these plans and to meet businessmen in these fields.

The President told Jaroszewicz that his requests "will be given prompt and serious consideration."

As explained by the Polish leader, Russia is building a pipeline to provide its country with considerably more oil. The contemplated refineries and petrochemical plants are needed for this increase.

State Department authorities are understood to favor aiding Poland.

In the past three years,

Poland Seeks Loan

Poland has obtained more than $230 million in surplus farm commodities from this country.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has been informed that State Department officials are stressing three factors in support of a loan to Poland:

strengthen Warsaw's hand in establishing ties with the West, particularly the U.S.

A loan of this nature would open an important market for U.S. equipment, steel and other supplies.

The employment of U.S. technicians by a Soviet bloc country would have far-reaching impact.

Jaroszewicz, in addition to being Deputy Premier, is a member of the Central Committee of Poland's ruling Communist Party. In his talk with the President, he remarked, "To put it frankly, we feel this loan would be good for your economy as well as ours."

Meanwhile, those long-pending economic aid negotiations with satellite Rumania are still going around in circles.

Rumania is seeking $150 million, of which $100 million would be in loans and credits and the remainder in farm products. The U.S. is willing to provide the latter, but is balky on the former because of Rumanian insistence on limiting the amount of compensation for American property confiscated by the Communists after World War II.

The State Department puts those claims at $260 million. Approximately $21 million has been paid on them from gold Rumania had in the U.S. at the start of World War II and which was seized when that country became a Hitler ally.

Rumania is arguing for a $50 million ceiling on such compensation. The State Department is refusing to agree to that, and the economic aid discussions, started early in February, are stalled on this issue. Deputy Finance Minister Radu Manescu heads the special Rumanian delegation conducting these backstage negotiations.

Social Whirl — Mrs. Eisenhower will accompany the President when he flies to Paris for the summit conference in May. That's the inside word from George Allen, close friend and golfing companion of the President.

Allen is telling friends the First Lady has definitely decided to go to Paris, "to do some shopping," but her trip to Russia is still up in the air. It depends on the state of her health at that time. If her doctors advise against it, Mrs. Barbara Eisenhower will substitute for her.

Lent has had no restraining effect on the hectic tempo of Washington society. Parties continue to be just as numerous and lively. In the past week, there have been at least a dozen big receptions, dinners and cocktail parties every day, with some lavish state functions thrown in for good measure.

Sen. Hiram Fong (R., Hawaii), first member of his race to sit in the upper chamber, was honored in a striking manner by Washington's Chinese community. More than 1,000 turned out to pay tribute to Fong in five different Chinese restaurants.

So many Washington Chinese wanted to participate in this unusual occasion that one place couldn't hold them. Features of the delectable menu were bird's nest soup, boned roast chicken, kourou, deep fried quail, abalone with bamboo shoots, diced chicken with almonds and lichee nuts.

Washington's Harvard Club held a special reception for four distinguished "old grads." Youngest of them was Secretary of State Herter, class of 1915. The others were John Lord O'Brien, one-time Assistant Attorney General, class of 1896, former Ambassador Robert Woods Bliss, class of 1900; and former Ambassador Joseph Grew, class of 1902.

Mrs. Travis Replies

To the Editor:

The Daily Record editorial of March 23 stated that some of the new councilmen wanted to do away with the school crossing guards in the borough.

There was never a thought in the minds of the councilmen to discontinue such a service. The truth is, we had already advertised for additional police officers so they could cover these positions where the children have to travel as well as other duties when not guarding such crossings.

Primarily we are interested in our children, and we need more police in order that we will have a sufficient force to carry out these double demands.

And as to the sewer — any objections offered by the newly elected council were not against the sewer system, but was against the tremendous cost to the already over-taxed public. Your article states that at the first meeting of this year, no word was said against the sewer construction. You seem to have lost sight of the fact that the sewer project was a finished deal before January, 1960.

The contracts had been let before Dec. 31, 1959, and the bond issue and financing had been arranged before the first of 1960.

The entire deal had been closed by the Authority Committee and the former council. It was too late to carry on further objections.

MILFORD—The Delaware River crested at about 10 feet above normal here at 3 a.m. yesterday. There was no flood damage.

Heavy rains early in the week, combined with melting snow, caused the rise in the stream.

Dry weather of the past two days helped alleviate the threat of flooding.

Helicopter To Join In Hunt For Boy

MILFORD—A helicopter from Stewart Air Force Base will be brought here this morning to join the search for three-year-old Raymond Geiger.

The boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Geiger of MILFORD, is missing and feared drowned in the rain swollen waters of Sawkill Creek or the Delaware River.

The child disappeared shortly after 2 p.m. Thursday while playing with a group of companions near his home. The family home is near where the creek enters the river.

Local police, State police, firemen and volunteer searchers called off the hunt for the boy at 6:30 p.m. yesterday.

Motor boats patrolled the river and creek yesterday and some dragging was done. A bloodhound brought from the Hawthorne barracks of the New York State Police was used in an effort to trace the youngster's movements after he left his playmates.

At least 1,000 persons have joined in the hunt at one time or another since the boy disappeared.

Bridge tenders along the Delaware were alerted to be on the lookout for his body.

Both the creek and river were turbulent from rain and melting snow when the boy disappeared.

Drinking Of Alcoholic Beverages Up In County

Record Harrisburg Bureau

HARRISBURG—Consumption of alcoholic beverages in Monroe County last year went on the upswing — or at least that would seem to be the case judging from wine and liquor sales within the county as recorded by the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board.

Three state stores are operated by the board within the county and in 1959, the board said yesterday, sales from these state outlets totaled $1,401,537.68. This is an upswing of 5.8 percent as compared with 1959 sales by stores within the county of $1,324,461.28.

Interestingly, Monroe County is ranked 29th of the 67 counties in the volume of alcoholic beverages sold with .50 percent of total sales in Pennsylvania coming from Monroe County stores. The Liquor Control Board said the average sales by store in the county last year rounded out to $467,179.

Breakdown

Here is a breakdown of last year's sales: sales at retail —

$671,670.30; sales to licensees and permittees — $681,786.86; case sales at retail — $26,825.28, and special orders completed — $21,255.24.

As for sales of wines and liquors by state stores in areas of Monroe County during 1959 and 1958, here's the story:

East Stroudsburg	$777,316.44	$777,982.88
Mt. Pocono	355,214.94	380,580.26

Just Between Us —

— By Bobby Westbrook

No one — not even the author — seems to take such a proprietary delight in a creation as someone who has recommended it to someone else. If you have been enthralled by a book, a play or a movie and talked other people into it, you always have a sort of jealous regard for it.

Over the long period of covering major club events in this county, I have heard Cornelia Stabler Gilliam many times because every time an organization wants something really extra-special they think of her.

I have not reached the stage where when she begins, I sit there like a proud mama watching the expressions of amusement, delighted recognition and rapt attention on the faces of those who are hearing her for the first time. At least I watch them until I too am caught up in the spell.

There is always an extra-special feeling about the Business and Professional Woman's Club birthday party for me, too, and to have them both together was pure pleasure.

Pleasure alloyed by surprise was Dot Storm's lot. As president she had inquired several times what arrangement they had made for giving away the centerpiece: sometimes they give it to a member who is sick, sometimes as a prize at the dinner. Somehow she never did get a direct answer.

Until, at the dinner, they presented it to her: container, candles, flowers and all. That presentation was the only thing that threw her off the smooth stride of presiding.

Anyway, it was a good party and everybody looked especially nice. A lot of offices were no doubt brightened yesterday with hair-dos, manicures, still fresh, and a bit of left over glamour from the night before.

Fine Ways To Serve Versatile Avocados

By Alice Denhoff

Logically enough, any roundup of California avocado recipes should lead off with Chicken Calavo California.

To serve 6, cut 3 avocados in lengthwise halves and remove seeds. Sprinkle fruit with salt and fresh lime or lemon juice. Melt 2 tbsp. butter and blend in 2 tbsp. flour. Add 1 c. milk; cook, stirring until well thickened.

Chicken And Peas

Stir in 1 c. each diced, cooked chicken and cooked peas. Taste and add extra salt and a dash of pepper if desired.

Place avocado halves in shallow pan containing ½ in. warm water. Fill with hot chicken mixture and sprinkle tops with crumbs of toasted buttered bread.

Bake 15 min. at 325 deg. F., and serve immediately.

Delicious Appetizer

Now that you've prepared a main dish, let's go back and make a delicious, refreshing appetizer.

Cut avocados in halves, removing seeds and skin and cut into cubes.

Prepare orange sections, cutting each section into thirds or

BPW Club Lively At Party Marking Its 36th Birthday

The Business and Professional Woman's Club celebrated its 36th birthday with a gala party at the Penn-Stroud Hotel on Thursday night with flowers on the table, favors for the guests, and everyone in her best bib and tucker.

Nine past presidents were honored at the dinner with special honors to Minnie Bisbing, charter member as well as a past president. Others present were Hilda LaBar, Elizabeth Kane, Anna Courtwright, Dr. Nina Price, Joyce Rutt, Bernice All, Marie Brown and Lulu Harvey. Roberta Evans, first president, sent greetings from Florida.

Dorothy Storms presided at the dinner, introducing her official family: Sarah Kresge, treasurer; Edna Brockman, corresponding secretary; Ada Somers, recording secretary; Joyce Rutt, Parliamentarian; Ruth Rinehart, second vice president; and Anne George, dinner program chairman.

Mrs. Storms also paid tribute to the husbands seated at the speakers' table. Tom Rinehart and Bert George, as well as to the help of other husbands who were guests. Mrs. Walter Kevé of the Cranford, N. J. BPWC, and Mrs. Horace Westbrook of The Daily Record, were also introduced.

Mrs. Robert Miller explained plans for the Miss Pocono Mountains Pageant on May 14 for which the BPW is selling tickets.

Mrs. George presented the table centerpiece to Mrs. Storm as a tribute to her leadership of the club, following a steak dinner.

Highlight of the party were the monologues presented by Cornelia Stabler Gilliam. Through the magic of her art, she transformed herself before the eyes of the audience from a suburban housewife, to a grandmother, a teacher of 20 years, a dime store girl bound for a vacation, an elderly actress, a refugee and a Garden Club speaker.

Her original monologues brought delighted recognition from the audience for the truth, humor and familiarity of the characters she created.

Leave Glitter For Evening Speaker On Charm Urges

Bangor — "Don't make up, make down," urged Miss Ferne Silfies a native of Wind Gap and a graduate of the Robert Powells Charm School in her talk to the Bangor Woman's Club this week in their club rooms in the public library building.

There is no age limit for good grooming, she said, but pointed out that good taste and good judgment are acquired, starting with the child who learns neatness.

Simplicity is the keynote of good taste, she said, and urged the women not to choose a color for emotional reasons or to wear more than two colors at once. A coordinated wardrobe should tie in with the most expensive item, the cost.

Other tips included: Avoid daytime glitter. Open heel and toe shoes are for evening, not street wear. Slacks and Bermuda shorts belong to resort sections.

Miss Silfies illustrated her talk with a display of hats, gloves, scarves, dresses and other apparel, stressing suiting the dress to the occasion. She was introduced by Mrs. Leonard Van Horne.

At the executive board meeting, announcement was made of the meeting of the County Federation at the Nazareth YMCA on Thursday, April 7 with registration at 6 and dinner at 6:30. Mrs. Burton Rader and Mrs. Charles Weidman were named delegates.

Arthur Widmer tells me Mr. Wyckoff Sr., was quite surprised this past Tuesday evening when presented with a citation marking his 50 years of service to the company. The presentation was made by Tommy Rinehart, in behalf of our store's Twenty-Five Year Club, during Mr. Wyckoff's annual party for Fifty Year Customers. That it was a surprise is, in itself, a surprise. So many persons were in on the secret . . . so many persons had their finger in the pie of preparedness, it is incredible that the news did not worm its way into "Papa's" private office.

Mr. Wyckoff does not care for publicity, so you never see his picture in the paper, and rarely read his name. But everyone knows him . . . and a familiar refrain very frequently heard goes something like this, "The town wouldn't be the same without Mr. Wyckoff—he's a wonderful man." Certainly he is a good friend to many hundreds of persons, and I seriously doubt that there is any employee of our company who has not, on occasion, asked his advice and sought his sympathy. As excellent a merchant as he is, I have always felt he would have been equally successful and beloved had he followed his initial decision to become a doctor.

I could relate many things about Mr. Wyckoff's kindness to people, and his depth of interest in so much that is worthwhile—but every time I touch a typewriter key from here on in, I'm tempting fate. Unless I change the subject, I'll probably get fired . . . sure as shootin'. I can only say that every Wyckoff employee feels about Mr. Wyckoff exactly as do the 25 Year Club members. While we haven't worked with him as long as they, we are nevertheless grateful for the months we have been associated with his store family. All of us hope the relationship will continue for many years to come.

I felt like a babe in the woods this past Tuesday when Hannah Shubb showed me the new shipment of articles from Denmark, Sweden, as well as various parts of our own country . . . a shipment of attractive, and unusual, wooden articles styled for contemporary living.

At something less than 30.00, but not so much less at that, is a tray ideal for the invalid, or the person who has household help and can afford to breakfast in bed. It is of a dark brown finish—teak, I believe—with a tilt top that can be used for writing, or supporting a book. This is a simple to raise and lower. At either side are deep, rope-laced pockets to hold magazines, mail, memos, and such. We have other bed trays, of course, at only 3.50 — not nearly so elegant, but very practical. These are of wood that slides into a folding brass holder. I imagine the legs would spread at either side of one's lap to hold a tray comfortably, so that one might dine in the living room too, before the TV set.

Other wooden attractions are the various styles and sizes of serving trays, some designed for specific things such as Chip 'n Dip foods. One version of the Lazy Susan takes the form of a central wooden pole from which swing four heavy crystal dishes. And, if you would dine by candlelight, you must see the imported hurricane lamps, with green globes over severely plain candle holders of wood. They're as good looking as any you'll ever see . . . and "woodn't" you know?—they're at Wyckoff's.

'Bureau' Confusion Reigns In Cuba

(Eugene Brown, general manager of the Danbury, Conn., News-Times, a James, Conn., newspaper, interrupted a vacation in Key West, Fla., for a weekend in Havana, Cuba. This is the second of a five-part series on his experiences.)

KEY WEST — Many tourists have discovered it before, but it was new to me. We had assumed that American tourists had Anglicized the native Spanish in Cuba. Thus it was quite a shock to us to find that in the native area where we were staying, practically no people understood English and seemed to assume that we should understand Spanish instead. Unfair!

We had also assumed that Prime Minister Fidel Castro would have set up the Cuban Tourist Bureau in such fashion that tourists could get going on being tourists. We underestimated Dr. Castro because it took us two hours and innumerable taxi fares to find the headquarters of the bureau.

I was anxious to line up a governmental information officer who could set up an information gathering itinerary that could be compressed in a limited time.

It is beautiful to see bureaucracy at work here.

cause not only did few officials know where the bureau had disappeared to but, to add to the confusion, it had changed its name from the Cuban Tourist Bureau to Instituto Nacional Industria del Turismo . . . shortened to "INIT."

We managed to hit numerous branch offices of INIT. These were staffed by very attractive Cuban girls who cheerfully passed out four-color literature but were too busy selling tickets to some kind of a ballet festival to bother with a writer looking for information.

Finally, after several lengthy taxi rides we did find the headquarters of INIT, where another bevy of intelligent and pretty Cuban secretaries tried to give me information on Cuba or guide me to the sources of such information.

No doubt that I just didn't reach anyone in authority, though several people honestly tried, to pave the way at the INIT building. I had a suspicion that the building was designed as an apartment house and was being "forcibly" remodeled to INIT headquarters. I was unable to check on this.

Again, I might add, that the Cubans are essentially such nice people that you figure confusion is just part of the handicap. I have run into worse at Albany or Hartford.

We finally made the ten strike. After conferences and closed door sessions they finally solved the problem of how to treat a small journalist and his family.

They gave us the name of a guide who worked at the Habana Hilton hotel. Thus they solved the problem, after our traveling over half the city in the Havana heat for two hours. I could have solved it in five minutes if I had used my brains in the first place.

At this point my stock with Margo and Jonathan was low.

From INIT, way, way out, we had to taxi back to somewhere. We just couldn't find a taxi driver who understood our English, either written or spoken. Finally we settled with a driver that would be willing to go to the American Express office. Surely everyone in the world knows American Express, and after another conference with the four drivers we felt we were back on our way to town and to the American Express where English is spoken.

Now where do you think the driver finally took us . . . you're right.

Right to the place we had wanted to go in the first place—The Habana Hilton hotel. (Next: Guns, money, and Chinatown.)

French Parliament Fighting To Keep Big Political Role

(One in a series of articles on France by David Ottaway, a former reporter for The Daily Record.)

PARIS, France — A reactionary French parliament is currently battling to maintain its traditionally powerful role in the game of French politics.

It is the drama of political evolution toward a presidential regime involving a considerable loss of prestige and voice for the numerous parties here in France.

Occasion for conflict between President de Gaulle and the National Assembly was the dispute concerning the right of the latter to demand an extraordinary session before the official opening of Parliament April 26.

Reason for such a meeting is the current crisis of conditions in the farm world.

Some 278 deputies, the required majority of National assembly members, officially demanded the convocation of Parliament to settle agricultural problems.

Refused To Decree
President de Gaulle refused to decree the opening of such an emergency session. Both sides find judicial backing in the letter of the Fifth Republic Constitution.

On the other hand, according to precedent, Parliament claims the necessity of the President to declare the opening of such a session, once a majority of National assembly members have demanded it.

It is plainly evident that there is more at stake than the farm issue and government price controls.

The past two months mark clearly a steady evolution of the Fifth Republic toward a regime similar to the American and British system.

Comparison to the American type of government is the authority of the President in the making of crucial decisions.

De Gaulle's refusal to convolve Parliament is based on the following arguments which he himself declared:

Shun Pressure Groups

Parliament must cease being the victim of powerful pressure groups such as the farmers' unions.

The President of the Republic must be the final judge as to the effectiveness and convenience of such extraordinary sessions of Parliament.

The initiative for emergency meetings should come from the government rather than from Parliament.

Accustomed as Parliament was to its leading role in the Fourth Republic political make-up, it is naturally strongly opposed to the de Gaulle theory of government.

Since the January insurrections in Algeria, de Gaulle has created a series of committees directly responsible to him. In effect, he has been forced by events to take on the roles of President, government and parliament all in one.

De Gaulle has little personal like for mixing in the day-to-day affairs of political life.

As several critics have carefully made the distinction, his realm is that of politics and not politics. On the other hand, he seems more than ever determined to forge a new respect for both government and President.

Consequences of such persistence are taking shape.

Political parties of the left are fast becoming disenchanted with the de Gaulle personality.

Possibilities of a new National Popular Front of Communists, Radicals and Socialists are now being debated on both the theoretical and pragmatic levels.

Radical leader M. Brocas has already declared his intention of proposing a vote of confidence of the Debre government at the opening of Parliament in April.

Sees No Success

Political observers judge such a movement as having little chance of success.

Condemnation of the Fifth Republic Constitution is becoming more and more general; demands for revision considerably more common.

De Gaulle, too, has ideas of revisions favorable to a presidential regime.

It is becoming a generally accepted truth that the Fifth Republic is standing as a table supported by one leg.

The recent wrangle concerning de Gaulle's denial to yield to the National Assembly's wishes is actually an attempt by the latter to keep a second leg and voice under the table as a counterweight to that of de Gaulle's.

Morning Postscripts

Hazleton Aims Complaint Monday

DISTRICT 11 of the PIAA meets Monday at Slatington to listen to a complaint by Hazleton High School about the assigning of officials for the recent basketball playoffs.

The governing group of District 11, headed by Ralph Burrows of East Stroudsburg, should use Monday's gathering as an ideal time to slap Hazleton with a year suspension from PIAA playoffs for its part in the near riot that occurred during the Hazleton-Catsasqua district championship basketball game at Hershey.

Dick Miller will manage the Anadomink entry in the Pocono Mountain Baseball League this year with Clint Beseker as president.

Tom Beseker is the secretary-treasurer of the group. Club advisors are Victor Cramer, Bill Reaser and Bob Miller.

Local Bowlers Enter Lebanon Event

Three local teams will compete in the 12th annual Team Classic Bowling Tournament at Lebanon tomorrow.

J. Bergman, R. Bergman, C. Shirik, W. Rush and Augie Lockwitz will represent the East Stroudsburg Beverage Co., under the Ballantine Beer name. The group is from the Monroe Classic League.

The Schaefer Beer team of Courtland Beverage is Jim Harmon, Jr., R. Van Why, Dick Andrews, R. Greiner and John Javitt. The quintet bowled in the Commercial "B" League.

Al Beseker's Diner of the Monroe Classic League will enter T. Hoffman, Harold Storm, Dick Lessig, Jim Harmon, Sr. and Oscar Stuckey.

Mud Slows Warrior Tracksters

Howard DeNike, who is starting his 30th year as track coach at East Stroudsburg State College, is running behind schedule with this year's cinder squad.

The first meet is April 20 against powerful Montclair but snow and a soggy track have limited the Warrior tracksters to little more than conditioning exercises.

The jumping pits are so muddy that it will take almost a week of sunshine to get them in shape for the high and broad jumpers to work out.

Water Gap Country Club opens its golf course today but temporary greens will be used until the regular putting surfaces become firmer.

In 34 years of coaching wrestling at Penn State, Charlie Spelders' teams own a dual-meet record of 168 wins, 42 losses and 11 ties.

Freedman Moves Classes To YMCA

Harry Freedman, who has switched his attention from boxers to bridge, is holding his thrice-weekly bridge classes in the local YMCA.

Harry, who says bridge is the greatest competitive card game, classifies bridge as an "indoor sport."

A collie owned by Stanley Boorstein of East Stroudsburg, finished second, a point out of first place in the graduation exercises of Powell's Dog Obedience Training Class at Nazareth, Thursday.

Pocono Archers Seek Second Place At Bowmanstown

POCONO ARCHERY ASSN., dropped to second-place in the Tri-County Conference League two weeks ago, gets a chance to regain the top spot at the Bowmanstown Range tomorrow.

The local bowmen moved into first place after the opening meet but managed only 15 points and one first place in the second outing. Bowmanstown grabbed 55 points in the last shoot, to take the top spot. Bowmanstown has a two-meet total of 75 points, Pocono 60.

Paul Dally, Expert AA, who was undefeated during the 1959 tournament season, will make his first appearance for the local club tomorrow.

Shooting Daily

Harold Hill, of Blairstown, N. J., has been on the local range every day for the past several weeks in an effort to get out of a slump. Hill will compete in the Expert A class along with Jim Banks and Ed LaBar.

Rudy Auer's victory at Slatington, the local club's only first place, moved him into the Expert B division.

Auer will compete with George Miller, Ray Uhl, Irvin Marsh, Don Heller and Darrel Gehris.

In the Bowman's class, Bill Dildine, Dick James, Jake Silvers and Gene Hippler will shoot for the local club. George Fenical and Harry Shepps will work in the Archers' class.

Association members who do not have Pennsylvania State Archery Assn. classification cards should contact Bill Dildine, Hamilton 1-5364.

Registration for tomorrow's event starts at 10 a.m. with competition beginning at 1 p.m.

Dentist's Pliers Helped Stuckey Become One Of Area's Top Bowlers

A DENTIST'S pliers helped Oscar Stuckey become one of the hottest bowlers in Monroe County. Stuckey, who prefers to be called "Oscar," instead of Oscar, has rolled 29 600- or - better matches and 113 200-games during the current campaign. He holds a combined average of 197 in three leagues.

Last Saturday he set a Delaware Valley Bowling League triple mark for the season, with a 741 and tied the single record with a 279, his second of the year.

Two weeks ago he tossed 10 strikes in a row, with spares in the first and last frame for 279.

Strike Tosses

He had 11 strikes when he bagged his second 279. He opened with six sweepers, had a spare in the seventh frame and ended with five more strikes. When all the wood was cleared, Stuckey had a 741 and tossed 26 strikes in 36 frames, covering three games.

Yet slightly more than a year ago Stuckey almost gave up bowling because of wrist trouble.

"My right wrist was so stiff," Stuckey recalls, "that I had to bowl a full game before each match to loosen the wrist."

A doctor told Stuckey that the wrist was probably sprained but the pain

Oscar Stuckey...
... Bowling Printer

and stiffness continued. "I had to soak the wrist in hot water every morning," Stuckey says, "and I carried a hand warmer to try to prevent the stiffness."

Average Dips

Nothing seemed to help and Stuckey's average fell 30 points in a month.

"I was bowling so terribly," he says, "that I was accused of not trying. One night after I had a 127 opening game the wrist hurt so much that I couldn't go on." By that time Stuckey had ruled out the sprain possibility and decided that he had an arthritic condition.

Finally a friend told Stuckey the trouble might be caused by his teeth. A check by a dentist confirmed the suspicion.

Teeth Pulled

A decay inside the teeth made it necessary to extract all the upper teeth. But it cured the wrist.

Stuckey is a relatively newcomer to the pin game. He started bowling in 1946 in his hometown of Holi-daysburg.

He posted a 165 average his first year but it took him 10 years to reach the 175 mark. "Once he broke the 175-barrier, he had little trouble boosting his average."

This year he is averaging 199 in two local leagues and has a 194 work sheet in the Delaware Valley League.

His biggest accomplishment was winning the "840 Classic" and the $200 top prize.

Four Down

Stuckey thought he had no chance to take the Classic. "Jim Schoch was on four times before I qualified and had almost a 40 point lead," says Stuckey.

But the bowling-printer, who has been red hot the past two months, made five appearances in the last 10 weeks of the Classic to grab all the potatoes.

And he hasn't let down since then. Eight of his last 13 matches have been over 600.

Big Hook

Stuckey uses a 16-pound ball with a four-step delivery. He throws a slow, wide breaking hook that he starts only about three inches from the gutter.

He doesn't have too much trouble converting the basic splits but the big hook causes him trouble when he has two pins, back-to-back to topple.

Unlike most high average bowlers, Stuckey is not a spot bowler.

He was hit in the head with a softball a few years ago and is unable to look straight down.

Stuckey has little interest in bowling in national tournament. The 300 games a year he rolls keeps him busy enough.

Warriors Lose To Moravian 9-1 In Practice Game; Walks Cause Damage

EAST Stroudsburg State College pitchers yielded only three hits but issued 13 walks, as Moravian beat the Warriors 9-1, in a practice game at Bethlehem yesterday.

Two errors on the same play got Moravian another brace of runs in the inning.

Pitcher Hank Ganno grounded to shortstop Bob Lienert, who threw wide to Stockholm. Stockholm retrieved the ball but his throw to third, trying to nail Yani, was also wild allowing two runs to score.

Tom Kelyman tripled to open the bottom of the sixth and Warrior hurler Leroy Smith dealt five straight walks before he was replaced by Web Michael. Moravian got two more runs on Kelyman's second hit of the inning, a triple.

It was not only the first practice game for the locals but also the first batting practice. A soggy field at Normal Hill has limited the outdoor practices to throwing drills.

Dear Abby

Sounds Like A Business Deal

Dear Abby I am 20 and have done modeling and been in show business, so you know I am no witch. An executive where I am presently employed wants to marry me. He is in his late forties and is getting a divorce. Everyone thinks I am the cause of it, but his marriage was on the rocks when I met him.

He asked me to sign papers stating that I am not entitled to any money if he should die, or if our marriage breaks up. This came as a shock to me because when I asked him if his first wife signed such papers he said no. I am beginning to wonder if I love him enough to marry him under these conditions. What do you suggest?

PRETTYPUSS.

Dear PrettypuSS: I am glad you are wondering if you love him enough to marry him under these conditions, because it is apparent that he is wondering, too. A husband who really loves his wife wants to provide her with a secure future in the event of his death. Your friend is looking for a "pay as you go" proposition. I doubt if there is enough mutual trust between you to make a decent marriage.

Dear Abby: I am a girl twelve years old and my problem is my mother. She can't stand to see me have any peace. If I am listening to the record player, or talking on the telephone or just doing nothing, she says to me, "Linda, don't you have any homework?" If I don't have any, or have it all done she will say, "Then go clean your room."

I will admit that I don't keep my room very well, but my brother keeps his room in the same condition, if not worse, and she never yells at him. Please tell me what I can do.

LINDA.

Dear Linda: Go clean your room.

Dear Abby: I have a friend named Sophie who is sweet, kind and pure. She doesn't have an evil thought in her head and that's where the problem comes in. Her husband is tall, dark, handsome and human. He's 43 and she's 41.

When he asks her to go to a movie or a drive with him, I've heard her say, "I'm tired, Honey—why don't you take Agnes?" (Agnes is her younger sister. She is cute, vivacious and divorced and I wouldn't trust Agnes as far as I could throw her.) There's been a little talk around town about Agnes and I'm pretty sure she'd take her sister's husband if she could get him.

I've hinted to Sophie but she doesn't seem to be getting the message. Would you come right out and tell your best friend that she is being a fool?

BEST FRIEND.

Dear Friend: Without naming names tell Sophie that a wife who is too tired to accompany her husband anywhere—and suggests a substitute—could find herself permanently replaced.

Confidential to G.I. in Alaska: Yes, that's MY picture. Thanks for the compliment, but you're about 21 years too late. (That's how long I've been married.)

"What's your problem?" For a personal reply, write to Abby in care of this paper and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Library Unit Invited To Conference

MEMBERS of the Monroe County Public Library Board have been invited to attend a second annual Governor's Conference of Public Library Trustees on April 8 in Harrisburg.

In an invitation extended to Mrs. C. C. Scholla, president of the local Library Board, Governor David L. Lawrence expressed the hope that both the president and members of the board would attend the conference. A committee of trustees has helped to plan the meeting.

Money For Libraries

Governor Lawrence announced that the theme of the meeting will be "Money for Libraries—Sources and Techniques." In his letter to the local board the Governor said:

"The public library has traditionally been a matter of local responsibility. It should continue as a local agency, locally operated, and designed to meet local conditions and needs. Nevertheless, the well-being of public libraries is a matter of state concern, for the success of Pennsylvania's educational program is measured by the ability of our citizens to continue a life-long process of self education and growth. You as a library trustee are faced with the problem of achieving the support your library needs in the

Against Reservoir

JIM THORPE — Approximately 50 property owners of the Little Gap Area voiced their disapproval of the plans of a six-man fact finding committee on the proposed construction of a reservoir in the Little Gap Area.

The proposed reservoir would necessitate the relocation of 50 families and one business.

The site of the proposed reservoir is one mile downstream, on the Lehigh River, between the Buckwa and Aquashicola Creeks and six miles upstream along the Aquashicola Creek.

The reservoir is one of 11 scheduled to be constructed in the Delaware River Basin and its cost has been estimated by the U. S. Army, Corps of Engineers, Philadelphia, at 19 million dollars.

Mental Health Unit To Meet

THE board of directors of the Monroe County Mental Health Assn. will meet at 8 p.m. Thursday in the offices at 616 Main St., Stroudsburg.

face of rising costs and expanding population." General Chairman for the conference will be Albert M. Greenfield, Chairman of the Governor's Commission on Public Library Development.

Roan Challenges Chess Champion

BERNARD Roan of Barrett Township challenged Harold N. James, club champion, to a 10-game series to decide the club title at Thursday's meeting of the Stroudsburg Chess Club. James defeated Roan, two games to one, as the series started. James Heatherington, East Stroudsburg, won two games from Earl Weiss of Stroudsburg. Mitchell Stackhouse defeated William P. Deering twice and Deering topped Stackhouse once.

Sun Oil Will Introduce New Sunoco 200X Gas

PHILADELPHIA — Sun Oil Company today will launch an intensified spring advertising campaign to introduce to the motoring public its new Sunoco Blend 200X gasoline.

Advertising Manager W. M. Schmitt says that all major media will be used with continuing heavy emphasis being placed on newspaper advertising.

Schmitt reveals that 262 newspapers reaching 24 million readers in the company's 22-state marketing territory will carry a series of advertisements about Sun's "new regular priced gasoline with all the ingredients of a premium."

"Sun's continuing stress on newspaper advertising," he says, "reflects our confidence in local newspapers as the ideal medium for quick transmission of timely news such as the debut of a new product."

New Sunoco Blend 200X is a basic fuel in Sunoco's six-grade Custom Blending system providing fuelpower to fit the horsepower of all cars on the road. It contains special additives which protect the carburetor, free valves and cylinders of power-robbing gum, eliminate stalling, prevent spark plug fouling, and cut down on fuel waste.

Road To Pocono Summit

COMPLETION of the laying of a 1,000-foot section of roadway to homes in Pocono Summit off the main highway there was announced.

George B. Hudock, Freeland, who owns a home there, was instrumental in pressing for the building of the road, which is located in Tobyhanna Township, Monroe County.

Hudock, known by many as the Father of the Pinchot Trail, has been living at Pocono Summit for sometime. He visited at his Freeland home over the past weekend.

Hudock was one of the regional persons who fought for the building of the ten-mile stretch of Route 940 between Blakeslee Corners and White Haven, known as the Pinchot Trail.

THE GOOD HOME MANAGER

If you are really a home manager, you use your equipment to save steps, to save energy. You manage your home. It does not manage you, and you become a homemaker.

You can save further time and energy if you manage your bill paying in the modern, businesslike fashion. That means paying by check instead of walking miles, or driving.

Stop into one of the conveniently located offices of the Monroe Security Bank & Trust Company TODAY and find out which checking service would be best for you.
